He is distinguished among his peers in matters involving public and private company capital formation, securities offerings, regulatory inquiries and enforcement proceedings, internal investigations, securities litigation, and corporate finance and governance matters. Ralph has particular experience helping clients form Special Purpose Acquisition Companies (SPACs) or “blank check companies.”

He regularly appears before the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), FINRA, the NYSE, Nasdaq and other securities exchanges on behalf of issuers, broker-dealers, underwriters and placement agents, representing them in capital market transactions, regulatory matters, listing qualification and de-listing proceedings, regulatory investigations and enforcement proceedings, class action and derivative litigation.

Ralph represents special litigation and audit committees, corporations and individuals involved in control contests, SEC, FINRA and stock exchange investigations and enforcement proceedings, securities class action and derivative litigation. He routinely represents issuers in complex recapitalizations, reorganizations, and capital formation transactions, both private and public, and he has substantial experience in the representation of multinational corporations in the United States.

Ralph brings his many years of experience and a broad depth of practice in corporate and securities law to help his clients resolve complex problems and realize substantial opportunities.

Previous Experience

Prior to joining ArentFox Schiff, Ralph served as chair of the global securities practice group in the Washington, D.C., office of an international law firm.

Client Work

Capital Formation

Routinely represents issuers, underwriters/placement agent in underwritten public offerings of securities, securities listings, private placements, Special Purpose Acquisition Companies (SPACs), Public into Private offerings (PIPS), “shelf takedowns” and confidentially marketed public offerings (CMPOS).

Public Company Representation

- Represents numerous public companies with operations here and abroad before the SEC, the securities exchanges, and other federal and state governmental authorities, and he advises them with respect to the full panoply of issues that confront public companies.

Securities Regulatory & Enforcement

- Represented a broker-dealer in a FINRA securities investigation and enforcement proceeding involving allegations of conversion of customer funds. The matter was disposed of without any adverse action taken.
- Represented a U.S. issuer in an investigation by the SEC alleging that the issuer sold its debt on the basis of misleading sales material. The SEC staff was convinced to terminate the investigation without taking any adverse action against the company.
- Represented a foreign company listed in the United States in connection with a trading halt and notice of delisting arising out of disputes with its independent auditor, and in the ensuing Nasdaq investigation. The investigation was terminated with no action taken and the securities halt was lifted.
- Represented a U.S.-listed Chinese company in an investigation by the SEC in which there were allegations of financial fraud. In that case the company resisted the production of documents based upon Chinese Secrecy laws that prohibited such production. Was able to bring the investigation to a close without significant penalties being imposed upon the Company and without the production of the documents concerned.
- Represented an overseas office of a major independent accounting firm in resisting the production of documents sought by the SEC, based upon local law that prohibited such production.

Class Action & Derivative Litigation

- Managed the defense of class action litigation against two underwriters alleging that the registration statement and prospectus relating to the public offering of securities that they underwrote contained material misrepresentations of fact. Convinced the plaintiffs to withdraw all claims against his clients without any concession or payment on their part.
- Managed the defense of class action litigation against three underwriters alleging that the registration statement relating to the public offering of securities that they underwrote contained material misrepresentations of fact. Upon motion filed by Schiff Hardin the complaint was dismissed with prejudice.
- Managed the defense of securities class action and derivative litigation arising from allegations of financial fraud by a multinational public company. The cases were settled well within policy limits for the cost of defense.

Special Litigation Committees

- Managed the Special Committee investigation of a telecommunications company listed on the Nasdaq Stock Market, investigating allegations set forth in derivative and class action litigation, including allegations that the Company was being managed by an alleged organized crime figure. In the related litigation, Judge Robert Sweet, a federal judge in the Southern District of New York, found Ralph to be a top corporate lawyer and found his testimony to be above reproach.
- Managed the Special Committee investigation for a NYSE-listed company that originated unrated automobile financings, investigating claims asserted by the Securities and Exchange Commission and private party litigants that its financial statements were materially misleading as well as allegations of undisclosed related-party transactions and tax fraud.
- Managed a far-reaching Special Committee investigation of a Fortune 100 NYSE listed company. The engagement was triggered by allegations by the SEC (and in related class action and derivative litigation) that the company's financial statements were misleading; by allegations by state utility authorities that state laws had been violated in connection with the company's maintenance of the company's electricity distribution system; by allegations by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission that federal law had been violated in connection with the operation, shutdown and maintenance of one of the company's nuclear electricity generation facilities; and by circumstances leading to a major power outage that spanned from Toronto west to Pittsburgh and south to Philadelphia.

Managed a Special Committee investigation of alleged financial fraud at a company listed on Nasdaq and operating in China.
